The World's Commerce.

As everything relating to the world's commerce is of interest, we clip the following from an eastern exchange to illustrate the immense commerce of the civilized world, and the increase that is constantly going on. It is also interesting to note the position and resources of the leading nations in their struggle for supremacy in trade, which the figures in the following article so forcibly demonstrate. It is also interesting to speculate upon the CAPTAIN DANCE SETTS having resigned the office of vastness of this subject, should peace continue Sherner Marter for the Port of Bonolulu, I have this day in Europe and America for the next decade, as in that case the volume of commercial Minister of Finance. transactions would be materially augmented, and would show the wonderful progress which nations make by the peaceful pursuits of innative and complying the Acknowledgments to Instru- dustry. The following article is valuable also for the statistical information given both as to population and commercial enterprises. sar, and should be cut out for future reference, ax because it epitomizes these statistics in an admirable manner:

Professor Numan Spallart, of Vienna, has recently prepared some very interesting statistics concerning the commerce of the world. It appears from his figures that in the year 1867-8 the total value of the products exchanged among the various nations of the two hemispheres amounted to the enormous sum of $11,053,600,000. In 1872-3 the aggregate had risen to $14,441,200,000, an increase of 31 per cent, in five years. In 1876, the last year for which the figures are given, the total, as expressed in money, was $14,000,400,000. The general decline of prices was in a greater proportion than this decrease; hence, it may be assumed, that the quality of products ex-changed really increased instead of diminished. Re-seems to be probable that, expressed even in money, the amount was greater last year than ever before. The great commercial nations are, of course, shown to be Europe and America; but their immense superiority has not been hitherto suspected. In 1866, Europe and America, with a population of $73,846,000,000, and a commerce valued at $12,116,000,600; while the trade of the rest of the world, with a population of $50,000,000, amounted to only $1,884,000,000.

Germany and Russia.

such that an open rupture between them would not surprise anyone who has been paving attention to the threatening aspect of affairs, growing out of the uneasy feeling engendered in Germany in consequence of the aggressive attitude of Russia touching the carrying out of the Berlin treaty. This is evident from the violent onslaughts of the St. Petersburg press Bowns of the Hawalian Government, of the denomina-sisse of $100, $200, $200, $200, $1,000, and $5,000, can be had mier, which reflect the views and policy of against the foreign policy of the German Pre-Russis, and has aroused the fears of Bismarck as to the ulterior purposes and intentions of Russia. The significance of these onslaughts will be more fully understood when we reflect upon the hints which have found their way into the newspapers of the continent of Europe within the past month, touching the foreign relations of Russia and the German Empire. Under date of August 11th, we find the following telegraphic news on this subject :

The London Times says: "Thickening rumors of a rupture between Russia and Germany, and mysterious hints at the connection between the rather abrupt change in Bismrak's interior policy and certain necessities in his foreign policy cannot but attract attention. The unity of Germany, the goal of all Bismrark's exertious, is not complete until the Germany and of Austral man part of Austra, comprising Moravia, Styria, Austria proper, the Tyrol and Elyria, is freed from the unnatural union with Magyar and Sciavic provinces and incorporated with Germany. But there is only one way in which this can be accomplished, namely, by moving the centre of the Austrian Empire from Vienna to Buda Pesth, and transforming Austria into a creat Sciavic power, with accounts. Austria into a great Sclavic power, with access to the Blank and Ægean seas. That Bismarck really entertains such an idea is evident, and in a recent excited conversation with Lattican, the Roumanian Ambassador, he made it more apparent, when he plainly declared that if Roumania did not fulfill the treaty of Berlin with respect to the emancipation of the Jews, her independence would not be recognized, but that she would be placed under the soveignty of Turkey or some other power (Austria)."

A dispatch from Berlin under date of August 12th,

A disparen from borns under date or August Little, received at London, says: "It may be affirmed, judging from the violent and repeated onslaughts against Germany in the St Petersburg press, that Russin thinks she has a grievance against Germany. There is reason to believe that there onslaughts represent, though in a very exaggerated form, the views of Prince Gortschakoff."

Such complications as the above dispatches indicate, between Russia and Germany, derive much of their significance from the well known fact that Russia has never been satisfied with the treaty of Berlin, and that she is smarting under the belief that by the terms of that treaty Russia lost almost all the advantages she had gained by her war with Turkey. The feeling in Russia, with regard to the terms of the treaty of Berlin are, that by the combined diplemacy of Bismarck and Beaconsfield, she was compelled to accept conditions adverse to her future interests in the east; and therefore will take advantage of the first reasonable pretense to break the Berlin treaty, even though by doing so a great European war might follow. It is evident therefore, that if a rupture takes place between Russia and Germany, that the whole continent of Europe will be in-volved, because it is the common interest of continental Europe to stand together for mutual safety. Nihilism in Russia is one of the most embarrassing drawbacks to that country engaging in a foreign war, whilst Germany is equally embarrassed by the Socialistic element in her midst, and the dread of France on her flank and rear, should she become involved in a contest with Russia, or indeed with any other power, and yet such is the condition of affairs in the countries we have named that an open rupture may take place at any moment. More Chinese

By the arrival of the German bark Iphigenia on Sunday last, from Whompos, we learn that she brings to these islands about 216 Chinese passengers, who are destined for the sugar plantations, and that there is another vessel on the way, which is expected to arrive in a short time, who were injured, but none fatally. Loss not asserting the contract of the second tank, there were ten men on it. All of whom were injured, but none fatally. The exodus of Chinese from China and California, which seems to have set in in earnest, will soon populate these islands to their fullest capacity, and solve the problem of the labor supply without the least effort on the part of anybody interfering. This seems to us to be the inevitable result of necessity and cannot be stopped by any hostile movements on the part of those who regard the advent of the Chinese as a calamity. We admit that the inflox of Chinese into these islands, in such large quantifies, is a subject that occupies the thoughts of quite a with the Archduchess Maria of Anstria. what such people are going to do about it. Of one thing we feel certain, and that is that as history alfight instead of surrender. realize in a few years the condition of things now existing in Sumstra, to which latter history we beg to point those who are the conditions are destined to be still, Aug. 15, when he returned from Potsdam to be still those who are the conditions of things now the still the s to point those who are pondering the question of how to prevent Chinese immigration. In the history of Sumatra will be found the illustration or elucitation of the problem involved in the future of silver to its old position as a money metal, with of Sumatra will be found the illustration or clucidation of the problem involved in the future of these islands. The only difference being, that it has taken hundreds of years to effect that in Sumatra which will be accomplished here within the next decade, because of the difference in the size of the two countries, and the superior facilities for transportation. That these predictions will be fully realized within the time shotted to its accomplishment by us, we have not the slightest doubt from a careful survey of the subject and our observations on the condition of things in this little Kingdom. It is needless to add that, had a larger intelligence governed these islands by those charged with the governed these islands by those charged with the It is needless to add that, had a larger intelligence governed these islands by those energed with the conduct of affairs, the case might have been different, and herein lies the whole difficulty, in part at least. While on this subject we may mention a fact that perhaps does not occur to every one, namely, that there is a class of productions common to tropical countries, and sugar is one of them. That perhaps does not occur to every one, namely, that there is a class of productions common to tropical countries, and sugar is one of them. That the committee headed by Judge Henry Booth. This is a fixed law of trade, which will demand and must have the lowest class of human beings to do the labor and therefore must be submitted to, which may as well be done without a murmer. If sugar may as well be done without a murmer. It sugar-cane is to be grown on these islands, to be profita-ble there must be cheap labor to produce it, and as sugar cane is the leading product, we see no reason why Chinese cheap labor should not be encouraged till the labor demand is faily supplied or abandon the cultivation altogether. The same remarks may be applied to the cultivation of rice, cotton and to-

of industrial revivals. Coal and iron advance, because activity prevails in all the affiliated pursuits, and employment is thus furnished to many laborers. Eugenie disposed of a great sum of the money in the Rue d'Alba and of the house in which M. Rouher used to live rent free, at the corner of the Rue de l'Elysee, for $50,000. The purchaser of the estate was Baron Hischwhilom "the Turkish Railway King." There are, besides, estates in Spain, in Switzerland and Hungary.
